The upper grades of Practice Sentences make a breath-taking addition to the Language Arts Curriculum by Michael Clay Thompson. The huge innovation is the extension of the method of four-level analysis, beyond grammar to vocabulary, poetics and writing. For this reason the advanced level volumes have been titled 4Practice. The intellectual demands are, of course rigorous, but what makes them so pedagogically compelling is their breadth of reference. In 4Practice Volume I, Michael Thompson has produced 100 sentences about the ancient world of the Greeks and Romans. Each sentence uses vocabulary from Word within the Word I, complements the grammar learned in Magic Lens I and the poetic devices studied in Poetry and Humanity. Each sentence challenges students on points of grammar, vocabulary, poetics and writing, and the content of many sentences will propel students to reference works to understand the context. The focus on the ancient world emphasizes the importance of classical Greek and Latin to modern English. The practice books have fully-annotated Teacher Manuals with the correct answers filled in and comments on the sentences.

Bernice Capps:

As a scholar exactly feel bored for you to reading. If their teacher requested them to go to the library or to make summary for some reserve, they are complained. Just small students that has reading's internal or real their interest. They just do what the educator want, like asked to go to the library. They go to generally there but nothing reading significantly. Any students feel that examining is not important, boring along with can't see colorful photos on there. Yeah, it is for being complicated. Book is very important in your case. As we know that on this period of time, many ways to get whatever we would like.
