Dearest Mom - We're Not in Kansas Anymore! Joan Spence

Joan was a twenty-something Midwesterner transported to Cairo, Egypt the week after marrying a TWA pilot flying Lockheed's Constellation at the dawn of the international commercial airline transportation era. Joan wrote weekly letters to her mother in Kansas City from July, 1953 to December, 1955. They describe her life in Cairo, her impressions of a vastly different culture, her commentary on current events and her challenge to create a comfortable home for her new husband. This touching conversation between daughter and mother reveals that two-year saga. More than a family history or a travelogue, Dearest Mom – We're Not in Kansas Anymore! is a first-hand depiction of 1950's society as told by an ordinary American living abroad, with an amazing relevance to today's world.
